

IN THE ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The Abstract filed in the Office Action Response mailed July 29, 2004 and objected to by the Examiner for not commencing on a separate sheet is reproduced below. Please insert the following Abstract on page 22 of the specification following the claims:

A networked sales method and a network sales terminal for use in communicating with a sales server via a network are disclosed. A plurality of price choices for an item is presented to a user on a sales screen. The method includes converting available supply and sales activity level information about actions by other users for the item into a feedback indication, and conveying the feedback indication to the user on the sales screen. The network sales terminal includes an item identification area, a plurality of price choice selection controls for the item, and a feedback indication area to display a feedback indication derived from a quantity of the item available and sales of the item through other sales terminals.